Officer suspended second time

One of Calgary's veteran police officers has been suspended for a second time, according to reports.

Sources say Travis Dunkle has been suspended by police Chief Rick Hanson without pay for allegedly breaching the terms of his disciplinary sanctions in relation to his last suspension.

In January 2009, Dunkle was charged with impaired driving after a crash. Although he was found not guilty, he was demoted and ordered to take alcohol-addiction counselling.

While Calgary Police Association president John Dooks couldn't name the officer, he did confirm that a member of the force was suspended Thursday.

"Our role is to support the officer and ensure he's treated fairly throughout the process," Dooks said.

"There are two possible outcomes: See if there is a way to reintegrate him back to full duties, or the other option is to force termination."

Dunkle has had several other high-profile incidents since 2007.

CSI Calgary?

It's not the next crime television show, but for the Calgary police service the new city Forensic Centre is even better.

The new forensic services centre officially opened Thursday and means all of the forensic services can be available under one roof now, according to police Chief Rick Hanson.

"Crime scene analysis is a critical part of our most complex investigations and this state-of-the-art forensic lab ensures we have the right workplace and equipment to do the job," Hanson said.

There are also six double-wide drive-through bays, two major crime vehicle exam bays, a stolen vehicle bay, an arson bay, office space and a photo lab and studio.

"This will help us do our jobs much more efficiently and it's like a one-stop-shop under one roof," Sgt. Jim Edwards said.

"The older building was quite antiquated and there were three different buildings so it made things a little more difficult."

Mayor Dave Bronconnier said the centre doesn't only meet the city's current needs but was also built in anticipation of future needs.

Forensic Centre

- The new facility at 10101 26 Ave. SE Calgary is 22,000 square feet.
- It is Silver LEED designated (Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design).
- Construction began in October 2008 and was completed this July.

Runners dream of cancer-free world

It will be a sea of pink on Sunday as thousands of Calgarians flood Southcentre parking lot to become a symbol of hope for a future without breast cancer.

The 19th annual Canadian Breast Cancer Foundation CIBC Run for the Cure is Canada's largest single-day event, according to officials.

"Breast cancer doesn't pick favourites, and on Sunday Calgarians should come experience the energy, the courage and help create a future without breast cancer," this year's survivor spokesperson Laurel Sopher told Metro.

In 2009, over 8,000 people helped raise $1.55 million.

Bacteria could help tailings ponds

Adding bacteria to the oilsands tailing ponds may have the potential to reduce toxins and improve water recycling, according to a release from the University of Calgary.

Researchers from the U of C and the Schulich School of Engineering have published a report stating that certain bacteria could reduce greenhouse gas emissions and allow companies to recycle more water from the ponds.

According to the release, the next step is to begin large-scale experiments.

Chief talks tough on criminals

Calgary's police chief reiterated his stance on Thursday about getting tougher on serious criminals who continually break the law.

While his comments were in regards to Wednesday's incident involving a man who was shot by police, Rick Hanson said his stance has always been to get tough on reoffending criminals.

Reports identified the man shot by police as Louis Bear, who was just sentenced in February running over two people outside a Calgary bar in 2007.

"We need to be tougher on the serious criminals, the ones who are there causing grief on the streets," Hanson said, adding he's not criticizing the justice system.

What do signs say about a campaign?

KRISTA SYLVESTER/METRO CALGARY

▶ Some signs catch the eye of passersby, but do they really send the message candidates want?

In Ward 12, a black crow sign for Roger Crowe has people talking

KRISTA SYLVESTER
@METRONEWS.CA

What's in a sign, anyways?

Election signs in all shapes, sizes and colours have popped up all over the city and it's got people talking about sign couture.

Depending on opinion, there is a level of importance to the sign a candidate chooses to represent themselves, though Mount Royal University political scientist Duane Bratt believes signs won't necessarily sway voters by aesthetics, but by the message they represent.

"Some candidates are using photos to represent their signs, some are using their signs to send a message and some just have their names," Bratt said.

"But I guess we can't really gauge how effective they are until the results are in. I would say McIver's sign isn't very good yet he's leading in the polls."

Bratt did point out that former mayoral candidate Kent Hehr, who has been in a wheelchair for 19 years since he was shot, would have made things interesting with his sign stating "A bullet can't stop him. Nothing can."

"I think if he didn't drop out, that would have been the one to watch because he has a compelling story and it would have been interesting to see what impact it would have had."

But city fashion expert Victoria Reade thought Hehr's sign was "low brow."

"I think the signs are important because I think for the people who aren't as informed, it's what they will remember.

"I think if a candidate puts effort into their sign, they will put effort into everything else," Reade said.

Reade thinks most of the signs are "hideous" and especially dislikes Barb Higgin's "plain sign," which Bratt also agrees with.

Sign bylaw rules

- Signs can't be posted within 30 metres of any intersection.
- Signs can't be permanently affixed or supported by rope, metal stakes or wire.
- Signs can't be closer than two metres of the curb.

Signs for the times

Calgarian Claire Hill (pictured) thinks signs make a difference to voters in the sense of the messages that they represent.

"I think the signs represent what the candidates stand for and signs that stand out catch people's attention.

"As for that crow, it's got people curious."

Feds name oilsands panel

60 Number of days the panel will have to investigate and then report back their findings.

The Conservative government has struck a special panel of scientists to look into Alberta's oilsands. Federal Environment Minister Jim Prentice says personal concerns over the quality of environmental monitoring in Alberta's oilsands have motivated him to appoint a panel to look into it.

"I have heard the criticism. I have reviewed closely the criticism that I have heard over the course of the last several months," said Prentice, who signalled earlier this month he would make such a move.

"I have had my own concerns about the nature of the testing that's being done, and have proceeded on this basis to get immediate response from some of Canada's best scientists."

The Tories struck the panel amid concerns that people living downstream of the Alberta oilsands are becoming sick, getting cancer and catching deformed, tumour-addled fish.

Those concerns brought Hollywood director James Cameron to the oilsands this week to talk to scientists, oil executives and Alberta Premier Ed Stelmach.

Members of the panel are Elizabeth Dowdeswell, Dr. Peter Dillon, Dr. Subhasis Ghoshal, Dr. Andrew Miall, Dr. Joseph Rasmussen and Dr. John Smol.

The group's findings will be posted on Environment Canada's website.

Undead rise to raise cash for food bank

Calgary will soon be crawling with undead as the 2010 Zombie Walk hits city streets this weekend.

Organizer Laura J. Mac said she's anticipating hundreds will show up for the walk on Saturday.

"There really isn't (anything like it) in terms of a for-fun event," said Mac.

"It's really one of a kind."

For this year's walk, Mac said she's encouraging participants to bring along a donation to the Calgary Inter-faith Food Bank, whether it's food or cash.

900
The number of people organizer Laura J. Mac is anticipating will participate in the event.

"Last year we raised 400 pounds and $269, so our goal this year is to try and double that," she said.

"If 1,000 people are going to get together anyway, why not help out a really great charity?"

First-time participant and former candidate for mayor Paul Hughes said he's looking forward to expressing his creativity with his zombie ensemble.

"I'm an artist so I like the idea of that juxtaposition … to the crazy hustle and bustle of the City of Calgary."

The walk starts at 2 p.m. in Olympic Plaza, and is open to the public.

MAYORAL RACE

Wake up and smell the candidates

If you haven't hit a mayoral forum, but want to get-to-know the candidates, Citytv Calgary might have the chance for you.

Starting Monday and running 6 to 9 a.m. weekdays to Oct. 15, BT Calgary will meet one-on-one for coffee and intimate chat with several of the individuals vying for the city's top job.

"We think it's important for the candidates to make that connection with the community," said Paul Schmidt, Citytv's content manager. "It gives our viewers the chance to watch it on their own time, in an intimate setting in their own homes where they can think about the issues that are important to them."

Day home investigated

While they aren't releasing many details, police confirmed Thursday they are still investigating sexual assault allegations in connection with a private day home.

Investigators have interviewed a five-year-old girl and have been on contact with each family whose child attends the home.

The day home has been temporarily closed during the investigation.

Residents show up in droves for Ward 14 debate

Civic Camp has a twin bill Monday night, with Ward 6 at the Glendale Community Centre and Ward 12 at the Cardel Theatre Start time is 7 p.m.

Mid-Sun community centre's gymnasium was packed Thursday night, and transportation and neighbourhood development were the hot topics of the evening.

The Civic Camp forum for Ward 14 brought to the fore issues such as appropriate transit links in some of the older Ward 14 neighbourhoods, problems with the Macleod Trail and 22X interchange and bridge, snow removal, and affordable housing.

What struck a Calgary political blogger about the event, however, was the size of the crowd on hand.

Shane Byciuk of Calgary Politics.com said the attendees, easily numbering more than 300, were likely attracted to the event through a combination of engagement in the upcoming election and dissatisfaction with their current representation.

DARREN KRAUSE/METRO CALGARY

▶ Incumbent Ald. Linda Fox Mellway speaks at the Ward 14 Civic Camp forum Thursday night.

"To have this many people means there's some discontent," said Byciuk. "People are searching for answers to some of their issues.

"This really bodes well for the upcoming election."

The SE LRT also came up in discussion, and several candidates expressed disgust that the city put the West LRT ahead of the southeast leg.

"Why didn't the city make the southeast LRT priority when a major hospital is being built in the deep south?" asked candidate Billy "The Butcher" Tummonds.

Janice and Ron, longtime Calgarians, said the turnout reflected the "change underfoot" in the city.

"We're just trying to get more value," said Janice.

"I don't see Calgary as a world-class city. (The candidates) talked of being visionary, but I never found anything visionary."

Both liked the forum format and said it helped them begin formulating ideas about how they'll use their votes. "It'll certainly help me to focus on the candidates I like," said Janice. DARREN KRAUSE

On the campaign trail

Ric McIver

McIver outlined his plan for snow removal on his website Wednesday, which said he will change policy to make sure all roads are cleared. McIver also promised to equip city vehicles with plow attachments and to reach out to private contractors. He said he would make it possible for citizens with snow removal equipment to "help their neighbours."

Bob Hawkesworth

Hawkesworth released a statement Wednesday taking aim at fellow mayoral candidate Ric McIver's fiscal strategy. Hawkesworth said McIver's support of the airport tunnel would double "the city's taxpayer-supported debt from $450 million to $900 million." He called McIver's proposed 2011 tax cuts and the elimination of the park-and-ride fees "reckless."

Naheed Nenshi

Nenshi went after Ric McIver in a statement Wednesday, noting that McIver was at the helm of introducing the $3 park-and-ride fee in 2009. "For Alderman McIver to now promise to eliminate it is unbelievable. If it's wrong now, it was wrong then," said Nenshi.

Barb Higgins

Higgins outlined her transportation plan Wednesday, throwing her support behind four initiatives. Higgins said she supports losing the $3 park-and-ride fee, opening up discussion with Bow Valley College about reinstating the U-pass, widening bus rapid transit, and expanding bus service to industrial areas of the city.

Craig Burrows

Burrows announced his "Back to Basics" budget plan Wednesday, which outlined how he proposes to achieve $102 million in budget cuts. Burrows said he would offer Calgarians a 3.2 per cent tax rate while still maintaining fire, police and transit.

WORKPLACE

Safety records posted online

Alberta has made good on its promise to post the safety records of companies online, but won't earmark which employers have bad records of worksite fatalities and injuries.

Employment Minister Tomas Lukaszuk says Albertans have a right to know the injury record of who they work for.

He says the website lists figures for accepted lost-time claims, claim rates and fatalities for 140,000 employers insured by the Workers' Compensation Board.

But it's up to individuals to check with companies for more detailed information.

There were 110 job-related fatalities last year.

CAMPAIGN MISSING THE MARK

Opinion

DJ KELLY
THE SCRUTINEER, WITH ANALYSIS OF CIVIC ISSUES LEADING UP TO THE ELECTION

An election is the ultimate exercise in personal branding.

If you try to be something you are not, people will figure it out pretty quickly and you'll see your vote totals affected accordingly. Most of the candidates in this election have this down to a science. Ric McIver for nine years has been the common sense-style conservative. He pledges to cut spending and ensure we are only paying taxes for necessary items. He doesn't stray from this mould very often.

Barb Higgins is a friendly face who Calgarians have invited into their living rooms nightly for years as a respected newscaster. On the campaign trail, Higgins is friendly and always happy to have a conversation. In the style of a television journalist with only a minute and a half for a story, her manner is very frank and she cuts to the chase.

Naheed Nenshi is the professor, the guy with the ideas. He knows what he's talking about and how those things apply to Calgarians. He talks about city hall as only an outsider with intense understanding of the inner workings can.

As any first-year marketing student knows, candidates can't play against their brand. It's called "going with your strengths."

This is why the behaviour of the Bob Hawkesworth campaign has been so bizarre this past week.

Even more than Ald. Gord Lowe or Ald. Dale Hodges, Hawkesworth has been city council's statesman. You may not always agree with him, but he's always willing to explain his position and why his view is important. In the meantime, he'd pick apart opponents' positions with sound logic in a stern, matter-of-fact tone. He'll put his thoughts up against anyone's and let the best argument win.

He's our Uncle Bob.

However, this past week his campaign has gone in a direction I doubt anyone saw coming. They began attacking all three candidates ahead of him in the polls using clipped videos, anti-candidate websites and attempting to boil down complex issues to "you're either with me, or you're against me."

The new direction is so striking that it turned off many election followers. I can only imagine it is turning off some of his long-time fans, too.

The contrast is not the Bob we all have grown to know and respect: A man always willing to listen and explain why he disagrees with you. Now people who disagree get shouted down by his campaign team.

But Hawkesworth himself still isn't behaving this way. In each forum he's been a feisty man of grace, steadily setting himself apart from the others by taking principled stands on issues that often don't prove popular.

One can only hope his campaign finds the right balance soon. Otherwise the election might not be the only thing Uncle Bob loses.

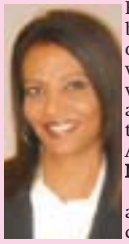
Ward 5, meet your candidates

Metro spoke to the candidates running in Ward 5 to find out who they are, what they do, where they stand and why they feel they deserve your vote.

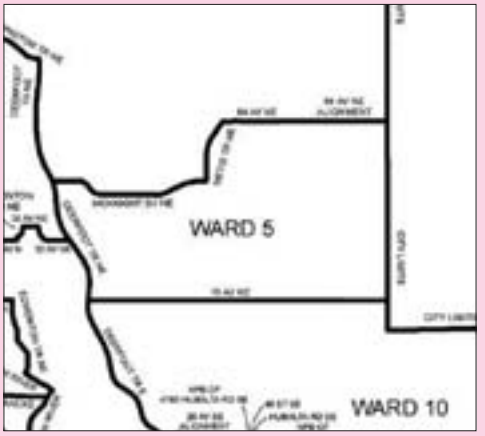
Beena Ashar



Former business owner, works in investments and real estate
Age: 45
No. 1 issue: Accountability and community safety.
Political experience: "I have been campaign manager for a number of people in Ontario and Fort McMurray."
Why run?
"Because I want to be the voice for the community. I've been doing a lot of charity work for the last three years in this ward and I know the issues that the ward faces. I want to give back to the community because I've taken from the city for a long time; it's my turn."

Jay Bal

Self-employed small-business owner
Age: 31
No 1. issue: Crime prevention and reduction.
Political experience: None.
Why run?
"I've decided to run more or less out of community service, rather than being a politician. I want to give back to the community. As a small-business owner, I've always operated my business out of the northeast and these communities, especially in Ward 5, are where all my clients are and they've helped me lots over the last 10 years. When I first came to Canada, this is the ward I lived in for 10 years … I have a lot of attachment to Ward 5."



Robert Guizzo

Owner/operator, mortgage brokering company
Age: 45
No. 1 issue: Accountability of city hall regarding spending, budgets and information.
Political experience: None.
Why run?
"Client comments regarding having to deal with city hall for developments began a long list of questions until I had too many questions with no answers."

Ray Jones

Alderman, Ward 5
Age: 57
No. 1 issue: Airport tunnel.
Political experience: 17 years as alderman.
Why run?
"I have been involved in the communities for over 30 years and care about where I live and don't feel my work is done yet."

French bank probe looks at Canadians

- Ottawa has list based on information from bank whistleblower
- Investigators looking into tax evasion using Swiss HSBC accounts

The federal government has obtained a list of nearly 1,800 offshore bank accounts belonging to Canadians that turned up during an international probe into possible tax evasion, CBC News and the Globe and Mail say.

The accounts at HSBC Private Bank in Geneva are part of a larger list of about 80,000 accounts that a former bank IT security specialist passed on to French investigators, the joint CBC News/Globe and Mail investigation suggests.

Herve Falciani, the whistleblower, claimed he was worried that criminals and tax cheats were using the bank to hide money and began copying private account information in 2006 after his bosses refused to become more transparent about their banking practices.

A spokeswoman for the Ministry of National Revenue says the Canada Revenue Agency has a list of individuals who may be exploiting offshore accounts, is assessing the names on a case-by-case basis and will take "aggressive action to recover money owed to Canadians."

HSBC, which has not been accused of any wrongdoing, says it "in no way condones tax evasion and is co-operating with authorities while protecting the rights of our clients to confidentiality."

It is not clear exactly how much money Canadians are holding in the HSBC accounts, nor is it known how many individual Canadians hold the 1,785 Canadian accounts.

HSBC says the bank and its clients are the victims of a criminal act — a theft by a former employee that involves about 15,000 existing clients worldwide.

CBC and the Globe say Falciani was fired by HSBC after being accused of trying to sell the account information to foreign governments.

Swiss authorities confronted him about that allegation and brought him in for a day of interrogation.

They asked him to return the next day, but he never did.

Instead, Falciani fled to France.

The CRA tells CBC and the Globe it has been in touch with the French authorities but wouldn't provide details.

There were 8,000 accounts on the list that belonged to French citizens, and only two accounts had been declared for tax purposes.

Compromise for shrine

An Indian court ruled Thursday that a disputed holy site that sparked bloody riots in the past should now be divided between the Hindu and Muslim communities. But in its compromise ruling, the court gave Hindus control over the area where the now-demolished Babri Mosque stood — and where a makeshift shrine to the Hindu god Rama now rests.

Who put the gag in Google?

Certain words are blacklisted

Google Instant is being rolled out across the country and before long Canadians will be able to play the game hackers are indulging in: Guess Google's blacklist.

Google Instant is a new feature that spits out search results while a user is typing, without the need to click the Search button.

As of Wednesday, started appearing on Google.ca.

But there are certain words Google won't help users spell. A publication aimed at hackers, 2600 Magazine, has compiled a list of such words.

"It's really an imperfect science in some ways ... we'll continue to make it better over time."
JONATHAN EFFRAT, GOOGLE INSTANT'S PRODUCT MANAGER

Some seem innocuous but could lead to adult pages, like "amateur," while others are blocked because they're associated with hate speech.

Although some say the list of bad words is a form of censorship, users can still search for the subjects by typing them in.

Google Instant's product manager, Jonathan Effrat said the list of words is based on search data that points to objectionable content.

Jean says thanks but skips over '08 crisis

Departing Gov. Gen. Michaëlle Jean has written an open thank-you letter to Canadians, covering many of the highs and lows of her tenure, but making only passing reference to her handling of the prorogation crisis of 2008.

Yet, she says that was a moment that likely made people question Canada's entire political system.

It's also likely to cement her place in the history books, but she deals with it in a single paragraph of her 2½-page letter.

"My mandate was therefore not at all a quiet one, far from it," she writes.

"As for my constitutional responsibilities, I had to face the specific challenges of all minority governments in exercising the duties of the Governor General."

A new book says Stephen Harper thought about going over Jean's head, to the Queen herself, had she denied him the prorogation he sought.

The book by Globe and Mail columnist Lawrence Martin quotes Kory Teneycke, Harper's former director of communications, as saying that a direct appeal to London was considered an option.

Toy maker orders recall

Fisher-Price is recalling more than 10 million tricycles, toys and high chairs over safety concerns in the U.S. and Canada.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission and Health Canada said Thursday that two of the products being recalled involved injuries.

In the recall of about 7 million Fisher-Price Trikes and Tough Trikes toddler tricycles, the agencies are aware of 10 reports of children being hurt. Six of them required medical attention. About 150,000 were sold in Canada.

The trikes — some of which feature popular characters like Dora the Explorer and Barbie — have a protruding plastic ignition key near the seat that children can strike, sit on or fall on, leading to injuries that the commission said can include genital bleeding.

Fisher-Price is also recalling more than one million Healthy Care, Easy Clean and Close to Me High Chairs, after 14 reports of problems. Seven children required stitches, and one suffered a tooth injury.

The death of a Rutgers University freshman stirred outrage and remorse among classmates who said they wished they could have stopped the teen from jumping off a bridge after secret video of his sexual encounter with a man was streamed online.

Tyler Clementi, 18, jumped off the George Washington Bridge into the Hudson River last week. His body was identified Thursday after being found in the river a day before. POETIC JUSTICE FOR POLITICIANS

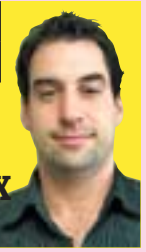
Other people's money



DAVID DESCÔTEAUX

Quebec's politicians deserve a Darwin Award.

Stuck in traffic with a pressing need to urinate, a man gets out of his car and walks toward the low concrete wall, then jumps over it to get some privacy. No luck. His car wasn't on the road — it was on a bridge.

Sixty feet below, the man lost his life. But he won an honour: A Darwin Award. Given posthumously (and humorously) to those who help humanity by removing themselves from the gene pool.

The Darwin Awards come to mind when I think of Jean Charest and Quebec politicians. When I reflect on the incestuous relationship between politicians and construction companies, the political appointment of judges, the illegal financing of municipal parties, etc. And, of course, when looking at the cover of this week's Maclean's, calling Quebec "the most corrupt province in Canada."

"The more areas the state meddles in, the more numerous the opportunities for corruption. It's a mathematical rule."

Some say Charest, Quebec's premier, will never recover from these scandals. If so, his political death might help humanity — by enhancing not the politicians' gene pool (quite a challenge) but, rather, the voters'.

In particular, the shameful displays of crony capitalism occurring every day in La Belle Province illustrate the correlation between the size of government and corruption.

Corruption occurs when politicians spend other people's money. The more areas the state meddles in, the more numerous the opportunities for corruption. It's a mathematical rule. When government distributes licences, contracts and grants, people have an incentive to use bribes in order to obtain licences, contracts or grants. It's true in Quebec and it's true elsewhere in Canada.

Studies by the OECD, the World Bank and numerous scholars have documented this. It seems obvious, yet we ignore it.

I give the 2010 Darwin Award to the Quebec politicians whose careers will perish from these scandals. Their blatant disrespect for taxpayers should help wake us up.

Recovery in retreat: Report

The economy shrank for the first time in almost a year in July, a stark signal that weak growth lies ahead and Canadians face a long and hard climb back from recession.

A lacklustre Statistics Canada report on economic growth Thursday came as the country's two main stewards of the economy — Finance Minister Jim Flaherty and Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney — both acknowledged that an earlier growth spurt this year has ended and uncertain times are upon the country.

In scaling back a planned hike to Employment Insurance premiums and limiting future increases, Flaherty said the move will help save businesses and workers $1.2 billion next year.

Meanwhile, Carney warned that while the recession may be officially over, the economy is still a long way from returning to strength and finding good, high-paying jobs will remain a challenge for some time.

TORIES PULL BACK ON EI PREMIUM HIKE

Business groups are welcoming the Harper government's partial retreat on an employment insurance premium hike, but critics say the Conservatives should have done a full withdrawal.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty announced Thursday that premiums will rise by five cents for each $100 of insurable earnings Jan. 1. The original plan was for a 15-cent jump.

He also said the government will limit future increases to a maximum of 10 cents for each $100 of insurable earnings.

Signs point to lowering GDP

Canada's gross domestic product could fall well below government forecasts next year as a combination of negative factors put a pinch on the economic recovery, according to the chief economist at CIBC.

A report from Avery Shenfeld says a softer Canadian housing market, the end of federal stimulus packages and guarded spending by U.S. consumers will be a drag on Canada's economy.

The CIBC projects real Canadian gross domestic product, an inflation-adjusted measure of the economy, will grow by 1.9 per cent in 2011, compared with a 3.2 per cent pace assumed in the 2010 federal budget last March.

Ontario will take the brunt of the predicted blow — falling an estimated 1.6 per cent below the prior budget's forecast for next year — because about 80 per cent of its exports are shipped to the United States.

Export blues

As will be the case in Ontario, other provinces heavily weighted in export industries will suffer notable declines in GDP.

5 MINUTES WITH: MARGARET CHO

Margaret Cho is an actress and comedian who is currently touring her comedy album, Cho Dependent. She is also a cast member on Dancing With The Stars. Cho will be performing at the Southern Alberta Jubilee Friday at 7:30 p.m.

This is a different tour than you've done before, tell me about Cho Dependent?
It is all new material that I have been working on for the past year as well as a few songs from my new album. It's a lot more variety than my standup shows (in the) past as there's joke songs and some surprises!

You're a comedian and actress, what's it been like testing the waters as a singer?
It's still comedy as I am a standup comic, but I want my voice to sound good for it to have enduring value beyond the jokes in the songs. I love singing and it's great to perform the songs I have written with the greatest musicians in the world.

What made you want to do a comedy album?
I had a lot of songs in me that I was dying to sing and I wanted to do an album as a tribute to the great comedy musicians like Weird Al and Steve Martin as well as Cheech and Chong. I love doing comedy music. It's very gratifying.

You worked with a bunch of great artists on the album, what was that like?
I learned so much from everyone that I worked with — so amazing! All the artists gave me guitar lessons and singing lessons and showed me how to produce a record. I am so fortunate to have been able to get schooled from the best teachers in the world.

How is singing live on stage different from performing your comedy act?
It's about how I can get my voice to still sound great even though the songs are funny, which is always a challenge. I am learning a lot and singing better every day.

You must be busy doing Dancing With The Stars and being on tour all at once, what's that like?
My partner Louis and I are dancing on the tour bus, we are dancing in parking lots — everywhere we can!

What's more difficult, learning the routines on Dancing With The Stars or performing them while wearing the tight, glittery costumes?
I love the costumes! The dancing is way hard but fun!

Worth mentioning

Some ancient penguins may have been twice as big as today's Emperor penguin but they lacked the dashing tuxedo, or dinner jacket.

Researchers unearthed remains of a nearly five-foot-tall (1.5-metre) penguin that roamed what is now Peru about 36 million years ago, and also discovered fossilized feathers that show back then, the flightless bird was a more motley mix of reddish-brown and grey.

Thursday's report in the journal Science is more than a curiosity about colour. Analyzing the fossil led to a new discovery about modern penguins, which in turn raises questions about how their feathers evolved to help them become such expert swimmers.

It's one of the largest penguins that ever lived, estimated to have been twice as heavy as the average Emperor penguin of today. The second species of giant penguin discovered in Peru is part of a cluster of now-extinct penguin species that apparently ranged over much of the Southern Hemisphere.

A stroke of luck helped paleontologists find the feathers. A student on the dig team discovered the fossil's foot and noticed it had scales, evidence of soft tissue that's rarely preserved.

No on-screen chemistry was needed for Heigl and Duhamel ◐ Characters thrust into parenthood together despite a true dislike for each other after mutual friends' tragic death ◐ Life As We Know It shows the difficulties of marriages and parenting

▶ Katherine Heigl and Josh Duhamel star in Life As We Know It, which comes out next Friday.

An unwanted partnership

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

[illegible],
Katherine Heigl and Josh Duhamel struck some solid on-screen chemistry by playing two characters that really, really hate each other.

"Yeah, these people really don't like each other," laughed Heigl during a recent interview in New York to promote the romantic dramedy. "He kind of enjoys needling her and sticking it to her."

"I don't think we put any pressure on each other to have chemistry," added Duhamel who insists the characters simply work best when they're at their worst. "We really didn't like each other. It was real … that was the whole mentality."

Opening next Friday, Life As We Know It casts Heigl and Duhamel as two polar opposites who must overcome their animosity for each other when they assume guardianship over an orphaned toddler after the tragic death of their mutual friends.

"I thought it was an interesting dynamic," said Heigl.

"Regardless of this bickering thing they have going, they are there for each other because they unite in this crap that they're going through."

The movie certainly rests on the question of whether these rivals will fall for each other through parental pursuits. However, for the two stars (who are each married in real life — Heigl to musician Josh Kelley, Duhamel to Black Eyed Peas' Fergie), the film also redeems the sacrifice that comes with marriage.

"Marriage can be a big old pain in the butt on many occasions but I really like my guy and I wouldn't want to live life without him," said Heigl.

"There is something about having a partner in life on your side even when you're wrong. That's kind of amazing to have."

Marriage advice

For married folks that are lamenting their single life, Katherine Heigl has some advice: "If it's a good relationship and its (your) true companion," said the actress. "Seriously spend a full day just doing everything in your life as you would without that person and you will miss them."

Malkovich keeps staying busy

Actor stars in Jonah Hex, Secretariat and Red this year alone • A new Dangerous Liaisons in the works

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

When audiences first meet John Malkovich's irascible French Canadian horse trainer Lucien Laurin in Secretariat, he's failing miserably at golf and spitting French put-downs. It's the latest in a line of delightfully aggressive turns from the veteran Malkovich, who also hits theatres this month with Red. Metro sat down with Malkovich at the Santa Anita racetrack to discuss choosing roles, directing theatre versus directing movies and how to look like a bad golfer on screen.

How is your actual golf game?
I never really played golf. My best friend growing up was always playing golf. I went out, I think, maybe once or twice and smacked it around a little bit. I never tried, you know?

So you didn't have to try too hard to play poorly?
Actually, (Secretariat's director) Randall (Wallace) kept saying the shots looked too good, so I fixed him up with some bad shots. I did one shot that was fantastic. I put out five balls on the tee and was able to hit one, which ricocheted and did another ricochet and hit the cameraman. Spectacular shot. I was like, "Take that!"

You've got an eclectic mix of roles this year, with Secretariat, Jonah Hex and Red. How much do you plan ahead what types of roles you'll take on?
Honestly, I don't over-worry the notion of roles. I try to worry about can this film be good? Jonah Hex could have been good. It didn't turn out to be at all, but it wasn't gone into with any sort of cynicism. I've done films where the role is fantastic, like Color Me Kubrick, but if the film is not a really good film, it doesn't matter. You may as well have not done it.

Do you have any more directing projects in mind?
The next thing I direct will be a new translation and adaptation of Dangerous Liaisons, of Les Liaisons Dangereuses, in Paris. I still direct a lot for the stage. I love directing movies, but I don't want to goof around eight years to get it made, you know? If I want to do a play, I just do it, and it's done. It's a waste of time to spend years trying to get something on that should be perfectly simple to get on. But that's movies, and I get all that aggro as a producer. You get your kicking producing. I don't need it directing also. If something comes along and I feel like it, great.

▶ John Malkovich and Diane Lane star in Secretariat.

How long did it take to get your directorial debut, The Dancer Upstairs, made?
Eight years. Eight years of nonsense. I like the film very much, but even if it would've come out really badly, it's $4 million. It's not $500 million. And it's going to make more than $4 million, and it will be around. If it took eight years to make a horse race, they wouldn't be much fun to do. I'd never say I love directing plays more than I like directing movies. But it's everything before the movie actually happens and then often afterward that you just think, "Oh, come on. I'm not 5 years old. I don't have time for this."

Josh Brolin does a fantastic impression of you.
Yeah, they say it's very good.

Have you heard it?
Not really. He kind of did a little for me. But I just saw him two nights ago and hopefully — I don't know if we're going to have dinner this week while I'm here, but maybe when I come back. I'm very, very fond of Josh. But yeah, I hear that he does a very good impression. I've heard a few, but I haven't heard Josh's.

A perfect pairing

The Social Network
Genre: Drama
Directors: David Fincher
Stars: Jesse Eisenberg, Andrew Garfield, Justin Timberlake
●●●●

Facebook: The Movie was a depressing inevitability, but fortunately the project found the most unlikely and perfect set of collaborators in the dialogue dependent West Wing scribe Aaron Sorkin and director David Fincher (Se7en). Together they've created a portrait of Facebook creator Mark Zuckerberg that presents him as a tragic success story: a mid-20s computer genius who created the massively successful social networking site despite being socially incompetent.

It's an ingenious piece of irony that positions Zuckerberg as a poster boy for a generation that lives robust social lives online without really knowing how to interact in person.

The Social Network uses two legal proceedings in which Zuckerberg is sued by former partners as a framing device and was based on source material derived from interviews with those he burned. As such it can't be taken as gospel, but the few awkward damage control interviews that Zuckerberg has done to defend himself recently suggest the overall portrayal isn't that far off. Fortunately, the level of truth doesn't really matter as the film is primarily a layered and surprisingly hilarious character study that represents Sorkin's best writing, Fincher's most subdued filmmaking, and the most nuanced neurotic performance yet from the underrated Jesse Eisenberg. ● PHIL BROWN

Fubar II
Genre: Comedy
Director: Michael Dowse
Stars: Paul Spence, Dave Lawrence
●●●●

It's been eight years since headbangers Terry and Dean were given'r in Fubar but the Alberta boys haven't lost any of their lust for life. In this sequel, the boys celebrate Dean's remission from cancer by getting jobs in the oil patch where the inseparable buddies' relationship is soon strained by a girlfriend, Dean's attempts to collect workers' compensation and loads of property damage. It's clear the boys have a bigger budget but they manage to keep the authentic tone of the original. ● STEVE GOW

Buried
Genre: Thriller
Director: Rodrigo Cortés
Stars: Ryan Reynolds
●●●

Buried begins with a Blair Witch close-up — all eyes and nose — of star Ryan Reynolds. We learn he is a civilian truck driver in Iraq who was taken hostage, buried underground with a cellphone, who will be left to die unless a ransom is paid. Bleak and claustrophobic, Buried feels like one idea stretched to feature length despite inventive work from director Rodrigo Cortes and a revelatory central performance from Reynolds.
● RICHARD CROUSE

Let Me In Genre: Horror
Director: Matt Reeves
Stars: Chloe Moretz Kodi Smit-McPhee
●●●

Let Me In, a remake of the much loved Swedish film Let the Right One In, is a story about two pre-teens excluded from general society — one by bullies, the other because she's a vampire. Save for its setting the film is respectful to its source in all ways but one. In the American version Chloe Moretz plays her as much more vulnerable which separates it from the original, but is a less effective. ● RICHARD CROUSE

StreetDance 3-D
Genre: Drama
Directors: Max Giwa and Dania Pasquini
Stars: Nichola Burley, Richard Winsor, Charlotte Rampling
●●

This week's film about a struggling street dance team forced to join forces with ballet students is British and in 3-D. In theory that makes it different than all the other You Got Served-style entertainment jammed down audiences' throats, but sadly there's nothing even moderately original about this movie. The screenplay is little more than a collection of clichés.
● PHIL BROWN

I'm Still Here
Genre: Documentary
Director: Casey Affleck
Stars: Joaquin Phoenix, P. Diddy, Ben Stiller
●●●

Was Joaquin Phoenix's brief failed music career a hoax? That's the question that everyone hoped Casey Affleck's highly anticipated documentary would answer and admirably the movie doesn't make things clear. It will be debated, but more likely than not this was an elaborate Andy Kaufman-style stunt designed to show how easily the media can manipulate a tragic personal meltdown into primetime

AMERICAN REMAKES A LONG TRADITION

In Focus

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

This weekend the story of a 12-year-old vampire who helps her young neighbour deal with bullies at school hits theatres. Sound familiar? It should, the movie is an American remake of a Swedish art house hit from less than twelve months ago. Let Me In, the English language remounting of Låt den rätte komma in, joins a long list of movies to paste an American stamp on its cinematic passport.

Let Me In is earning good reviews for its respectful treatment of the source material but that is not always the case. Critic Tom O'Neil warned, "Chances are, with the remake, Hollywood is just serving up re-fried beans that aren't very tasty."

Re-hashes like Weekend at Bernie's, which was loosely based on the Indian cult classic Jane Bhi Do Yaaron and the Thai film Bangkok Dangerous, which won the 2000 Toronto International Film Festival international critics' Award only to be retooled as a big budget, small-brained Nic Cage movie, have left a bad taste in viewer's mouths but not all remakes are unpalatable.

The Departed, the Irish Mafia movie that gave Martin Scorsese his long deserved Best Director Oscar, was based on the Hong Kong film Infernal Affairs. Critics loved Scorsese's film, giving it a 93 per cent fresh rating on Rotten Tomatoes, although Infernal Affairs star Andy Lau grumbled, "The Departed was too long," and Andrew Lau, the original's co-director said, "of course I think the version I made is better but the Hollywood version is pretty good too."

Also pretty good is Insomnia, Christopher Nolan's 2002 remake of a 1997 Norwegian film of the same name. Directed by Erik Skjoldbjærg, the original's story of a disgraced Swedish detective, played by Stellan Skarsgård, who struggles to solve a brutal murder case in northern Norway is a gritty psychological drama which writer Peter Cowie said "represents European cinema at its most challenging." The U.S. remake, starring Al Pacino, Robin Williams and Hilary Swank is a much different film. Roger Ebert said, "unlike most remakes, the Nolan Insomnia is not a pale retread, but a re-examination of the material, like a new production of a good play."

▶ The Departed was a remake of the Hong Kong film Infernal Affairs.

These U.S. remakes have always been with us, and regardless of how Let Me In fares at the box office, are unlikely to stop. For better or for worse plans are already underway for an English remake of The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo starring Daniel Craig.

The new Robert Pattinson?

British actor Andrew Garfield certainly has the hair — and the new roles — to give the Twilight star a run for his money Did we mention he's Spider-Man?

NED EHRBAR
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

With two high-profile movies hitting theatres this month, and the fact that he was just tapped to be the new Spider-Man, 25-year-old British actor Andrew Garfield's life is changing, to say the least. But with everything taking off around him, Garfield would rather slip away from the Hollywood scene and debate religion. Metro sat down with the genial actor to discuss his latest film, the adaptation of Kazuo Ishiguro's Never Let Me Go.

Were you a fan of the book prior to doing the movie?
Well, I'd read the book and the script simultaneously before I'd auditioned. You just can't argue with it. It's just such a well-crafted

"We spent two weeks rehearsing where we pretty much just got to know each other — because we had to if we were going to play brothers and sisters, pretty much."
GARFIELD, ON WORKING WITH CO-STARS CAREY MULLIGAN AND KIERA KNIGHTLEY

musing on what it is to be alive.

You have some of the most intense scenes in the film. What kind of challenge was that?
I'd go nuts if I didn't exorcise certain of my own demons. It was painful in a controlled situation, which kind of gives it allowance. Whereas in my real life and in all of our real lives, we try to avoid pain at all costs, right? One of the themes of this film is our need as human beings to keep death out of reach, to prolong our lives, to continue our seed going into the future. Because the idea of death, the idea of the nothing is terrifying. Unless you have a deep-rooted spiritual doubtlessness about what happens after life, which I don't feel like we have very much in our Western society.

You also star in The Social Network. How are you celebrating your big autumn?
Maybe I'll go to Portland or something and hang out, just bury my head in the sand. I'm aware that these two films are coming out, and it is exciting because I'm so happy to be a part of them and to talk to people about it. But once filming is over, that's kind of the end of the real fun stuff for me.

Documentary leads to an unexpected place

PHIL BROWN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Ariel Schulman and Henry Joost like to film everything they do, just in case. These days, you never know when you'll stumble onto a clip that'll make you the toast of the internet for 15 minutes.

"The audience experience has been really great, which was a huge surprise. I had no idea what to expect from watching it with strangers in a large numbers."
ARIEL SCHULMAN

"We're compulsive chroniclers" explained Schulman, who admits to having folders full of footage of his brother Nev leaning back in a chair in their office because "one of these days he's going to fall and I might want to build a video around it."

That instinct lead to their debut feature Catfish about Nev's odd online relationship with a family that led to an in person meeting with disastrous and distressing results. Revealing more would be unfair, but the digital documentary caused a stir at Sundance and the obvious joke is that it could do for Facebook what Psycho did for showers.

▶ Nev Schulman in Catfish

Schulman and Joost filmed every moment of the online affair hoping that they'd make "a short film about a little friendship that started online between a painter and a photographer." They ended up with something far more complex and disturbing, but admirably continued chronicling every moment from Nev's first awkward phone call with his mysterious online admirer on. Joost admitted to only missing, "a great fight that Ariel and Nev had afterwards that I sort of wish I'd filmed, but it's probably better that I didn't because someone would have broken my wrist."

The close friendship between Ariel, Henry, and Nev managed to survive the ordeal of shooting and now they have possibly the first cautionary tale of the Facebook age. The film's "star" Nev has found that audiences "are immediately familiar with me after seeing the movie and come up and say, "oh my god Nev, I've got to tell you something.'"

As a result the filmmakers have been inundated with similar tales of online deception. "These stories are happening all over the place, but they're just not getting caught on film," said Ariel.

As to what the team have planned next now that they've broken into the world of professional filmmaking, Ariel joked, "We'll probably just film Nev every one in a while and hope for the best."

Law & Order gets British makeover

26 episodes of Law & Order: UK made available to U.S. audience

Where scripted shows on U.S. networks are concerned, viewers know it's all about them.

They know certain shows have been imported for them and specially tailored for U.S. tastes. British comedies spawned All in the Family and Sanford and Son in the early 1970s. More recently, Ugly Betty was adapted from a Colombian telenovela. And NBC's The Office was a domestic reimagining of the British original.

Meanwhile, it's no surprise that American series are sold around the world, dubbed or subtitled for each local audience.

U.S. viewers can get a dandy look at such a foreign transplant thanks to cable's BBC America, which is bringing 26 episodes of Law & Order: UK back to the land where the Law & Order TV empire was born.

Premiering Sunday at 10:30 p.m. EDT, with subsequent episodes airing Fridays at 9 p.m. EDT, Law & Order: UK is unmistakably kin to the L&O family.

While the classic Mike Post licks have been swapped out for a different theme, each episode begins with the sonorously voiced, "In the criminal justice system ..." rap. (Though here, it's the crown prosecutors who prosecute offenders.) And - never fear - location cards remain part of the format, along with the accompanying cha-CHUNG sound effect.

New York City plays an integral role in Law & Order, but its British offshoot is set in London.

Each episode has been adapted from the original series, seen on NBC from 1990 through last season. The first L&O: UK hour is based on the script for Cradle to Grave where a baby is found dead, possibly the victim of tenant harassment. It first aired on Law & Order in 1992.

The regulars of L&O: UK are solid but likely to be unknowns to most American viewers: Jamie Bamber (Outcasts, Battlestar Galactica) stars as Detective Sergeant Matt Devlin while Bradley Walsh (The Old Curiosity Shop) carried the role of Detective Sergeant Ronnie Brooks.

Not exactly household names, but the cast's makeup and relationships will feel instantly familiar to any L&O fan.

This would include fans in Britain, where (along with dozens of other countries) the imported Law & Order already had been airing when Law & Order: UK premiered last year on the ITV network. That show has since proved a big success, averaging about a one-quarter share of the viewing audience.

"After 'Law & Order' was broadcast there, we made an English version and it turned into a hit, and, lo and behold, it's coming back to the U.S.," said Law & Order creator Dick Wolf. "This is getting pretty close to a perpetual motion machine."

Everyone likes lists. Most lists are designed to keep things organized and on schedule. Others are intended to create debate and discussion. Lists that rank music on some kind of scale of "best-ness" fall firmly into the latter category.

In 2007, CBC arts reporter and music columnist Bob Mercereau created a national debate with his book, The Top 100 Canadian Albums. That list — topped by Neil Young's Harvest — was the result of a survey of 600 DJs, record store people, musicians and music journalists (including me) from across the country.

Now Bob's done it again with The Top 100 Canadian Singles.

"With the first book," he says, "I found that people were thrilled with an all-Canadian look at music. I don't know if it's so much a question of national pride as it is one of fond memories and personal connections to the music. People really reacted to the fact that this was their music, our music.

"I think the reaction to this one will be similar. Plus, this time the stories behind the songs are so fun. I think people will really enjoy reading how Bryan Adams came to write Summer of '69 [I KNEW it!-AC] or the true meaning of A Foot in Cold Water's (Make Me Do) Anything You Want."

I agree wholeheartedly with Bob when he says that Canada has, in general, not done a very good job documenting its music history. "Most pop histories are written with an American or British slant, so [our] stories haven't been repeated as much. I tried to get each musician to dig deep and give us a surprising story that will help you hear the song in a while new light."

Looking though the rankings — I won't spoil anything for you here other than to say Neil Young, The Band nor Anne Murray finished at number one — you'll be amazed at the breadth and scope of our musical heritage. And you'll be surprised at how well (or how poorly) some well-known artists did. Leonard Cohen will feel more vindication over Hallelujah. Not that he needs it, of course.

Sadly, a couple of these songs are unavailable through iTunes or on CD. Can someone please fix that?

The Top 100 Canadian Singles by Bob Mercereau is available now through Goose Lane.

Top 20 Canadian singles

Debate is sure to follow the release of The Top 100 Canadian Singles, a book based on a survey of roughly 800 musicians, music critics and fans. A look at the Top 20:

1. American Woman/No Sugar Tonight, The Guess Who (RCA, 1970)
2. Heart of Gold, Neil Young (Reprise, 1972)
3. "The Weight, The Band (Capitol, 1968)
4. Summer of '69, Bryan Adams (A&M, 1985)
5. Hallelujah, Leonard Cohen (Columbia, 1984)
6. Born to be Wild, Steppenwolf (Dunhill, 1968)
7. If You Could Read My Mind, Gordon Lightfoot (Reprise, 1970)
8. Takin' Care of Business, Bachman-Turner Overdrive (Mercury, 1974)
9. Four Strong Winds, Ian & Sylvia (Vanguard, 1963)
10. Snowbird, Anne Murray (Capitol, 1970)
11. Big Yellow Taxi, Joni Mitchell (Reprise, 1970)
12. Tom Sawyer, Rush (Mercury, 1981)
13. Try, Blue Rodeo (Risque Disque, 1987)
14. New Orleans is Sinking, The Tragically Hip (MCA, 1989)
15. The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald, Gordon Lightfoot (Reprise, 1976)
16. Suzanne, Leonard Cohen (Columbia, 1967)
17. Life is a Highway, Tom Cochrane (Capitol, 1991)
18. These Eyes, The Guess Who (Nimbus 9, 1969)
19. Sundown, Gordon Lightfoot (Reprise, 1974)
20. Underwhelmed, Sloan (murderecords, 1992)

Emo re-Invented

Album evokes pop-punk glory days of Arizona band Jimmy Eat World

Jimmy Eat World know not to let go of a good thing. Having spent the last couple of albums moving into a modern rock territory after sharing the responsibility of popularizing "emo," the Tempe, Arizona band have gone back to their roots.

For their seventh studio album, Invented, Jimmy Eat World reteamed with the man that helped them make both their 1999 classic, Clarity, and 2001's million-selling Bleed American: producer Mark Trombino.

"We have a really great history with Mark," says singer/guitarist Jim Adkins. "We basically cut our first official record with him. Having that kind of history with him, you don't waste your time explaining where you're coming from with an idea."

The band instantly reclicked with Trombino, and soon he began acting like their de facto fifth member. "It's a plus and also makes things a little bit harder, but Mark will invest himself like he wrote the song with whatever he's working on," Adkins says.

He gets really passionate about it and that's good. We all know we're on the same side, to make a song the best it can be."

Invented isn't about to raise the emo tag back from the dead, but it does evoke the band's pop punk glory days with charged choruses and sweeping arrangements.

Oddly enough though, it was born right when they embarked on a tenth anniversary tour of Clarity.

"We were right in the middle of writing Invented," says Adkins. "The tour idea actually came from fans. Message board kids posting, 'You should do this!' It was fun. It's been a good ten years since we sat down and had that band meeting about the Clarity material, so it was interesting."

Photo finish

▶ Tom Adkins says that while writing Invented he chose the photography of Cindy Sherman and Hannah Starkey to inspire him. "Three years ago I started this writing exercise where I was flipping through images of [theirs] and just writing everything I could that came to mind," he explains. "I'd go back to that writing and work on our own music. It just happened that 85 per cent of Invented was spawned from those writing sessions."

Thousand Suns shining

Linkin Park marry rap metal to psychedelia in new album Record not just singles, lead singer says

▶ Linkin Park's new album A Thousand Suns is out now.

The day after Linkin Park's latest album was released, its lead singer, Chester Bennington, logged on to iTunes to check some of the reviews. Though the responses weren't all positive, he liked what he read.

"This time around it's like they either love it and it's five-stars across the board or they hate the record so much that ... if they could they would throw it at us," Bennington said. "And I think that's great."

While there's still heavy metal-fused hip-hop on A Thousand Suns, there's also psychedelic, instrumental moments that are a departure for the Los Angeles-based rap-rockers.

Mike Shinoda says Suns is an album that "asks a lot of attention from people."

"It's more of a 48-minute experience than it is just a collection of singles," said Shinoda, the group's lead lyricist. "We really tried to make an album that took you out of your head a little bit ... and we wanted to take people on this journey," Bennington added. "It's a musical drug type of thing."

Talking politics

- One main artistic departure for the band on Suns is the use of political speeches. There are interludes that take from an interview with physicist J. Robert Oppenheimer regarding the Manhattan Project and another from Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s 1967 anti-war speech "Beyond Vietnam: A Time for Breaking Silence."

The new sound wasn't intentional for the guys. They say while creating 2007's Minutes to Midnight, they decided to head in a direction different from their first two albums: The 2003 multiplatinum effort Meteora and their 10 million-selling debut, 2000's Hybrid Theory.

But before creating Suns, the six-member band got busy working on music for their video game Linkin Park Revenge, an app for iPhones. Rick Rubin, who co-produced the new album and also Minutes to Midnight, says making music for the game was the "initial thrust" for the band's latest sound.

"It was interesting the way it came about because originally they didn't know that they were starting the album ... and it just like kind of took on a life of its own," Rubin said. "Then we talked about well maybe (if) this is the music that you're passionate about making, maybe this is where it's supposed to go."

Legend dead at 85

Tony Curtis dies of cardiac arrest in his Las Vegas area home

Tony Curtis shaped himself from a 1950s movie heart throb into a respected actor, showing a determined streak that served him well in such films as Sweet Smell of Success, The Defiant Ones and Some Like It Hot.

The Oscar-nominated actor died at age 85 Wednesday evening of cardiac arrest at his home in the Las Vegas-area city of Henderson, Clark County Coroner Mike Murphy said Thursday.

His first wife was actress Janet Leigh of Psycho fame; actress Jamie Lee Curtis is their daughter.

"My father leaves behind a legacy of great performances in movies and in his paintings and assemblages," Jamie Lee Curtis said in a statement Thursday. "He leaves behind children and their families who loved him and respected him and a wife and in-laws who were devoted to him. He also leaves behind fans all over the world."

"My father leaves behind a legacy of great performances in movies and in his paintings and assemblages."
JAMIE LEE CURTIS

Curtis struggled against drug and alcohol abuse as starring roles became fewer, but then bounced back in film and television as a character actor.

His brash optimism returned, and he allowed his once-shiny black hair to turn silver.

Again he came back after even those opportunities began to wane, reinventing himself as a writer and painter whose canvasses sold for as much as $20,000.

"I'm not ready to settle down like an elderly Jewish gentleman, sitting on a bench and leaning on a cane," he said at 60. "I've got a helluva lot of living to do."

Hilton's boy charged with hit and run

Paris' alleges couple was attacked by photographers while leaving

Paris Hilton and boyfriend Cy Waits had another rough night behind the wheel when Waits' allegedly ran over a photographer's foot while his car was swarmed by paparazzi, according to Radar Online.

Video of the incident shows the woman limping away as Waits asks if she is OK.

After other paparazzi told him she is fine and that he should leave, Waits took off, with the photographers shouting, "Hit and run!" after him.

Waits was later detained by police and released with a citation.

According to Hilton's twitter stream, they were attacked by photographers while trying to leave the place.

"Lovely evening with friends and family ruined by aggressive paparazzi," she tweeted out after the accident. "They are literally insane!"

Another report said Hilton's car knocked over the female photographer before they left the scene.

The photographer then called 911 herself, and was taken to hospital.

Waits later returned to the scene of the accident to meet with the local police, who charged him with a hit and run.

Last month, he and Hilton were arrested in Las Vegas for driving under the influence and cocaine possession, respectively.

Michael Douglas 'doing well'

HOW BORING IS THAT? WE NEED SCANDAL Catherine Zeta-Jones says husband Michael Douglas' cancer treatment is nearly done and he's "doing well," according to People magazine.

"He is holding up with strength and dignity. He is about to finish his treatment and the doctors could not be happier," she says.

The actress was in her native Wales this week for a star-studded golf event hosted by Prince Charles.

"This has been on her calendar for months, and Michael insisted she go," a source says.

"They are both golf lovers. This is important to Catherine and to Wales, so she made it a quick trip to be a part of the important night, and get right home."

Mistress shops Woods' sex tape

Devon James, one of Tiger Woods' mistresses, claims she has a sex tape featuring herself and the golf pro — and she's looking for buyers, according to Radar Online.

"The tape is 62 minutes long, and 37 minutes of it is us having sex," she tells the Web site. "We are flying to Los Angeles to meet with Vivid about selling the tape. If Vivid won't pay enough, we're going to self-release the tape. It's going to be the bomb."

James is reportedly hoping to get at least $350,000 for the tape. METRO

Preparing meals for the most finicky of us

Kids' nutrition author Annabel Karmel dishes goods on weaning babies

Bestselling British children's food and nutrition author Annabel Karmel is well aware of the challenges faced by frustrated parents of kids who are difficult eaters — it's been part of her own experience as a mother.

Karmel said her son, Nicholas, was a very fussy eater. The little one wouldn't eat jarred foods, nor would he touch the bland purées Karmel whipped up from recipes she found in books.

Coping with a child unwilling to eat is stressful enough. But experiencing the heartbreaking loss of her first child only served to fuel Karmel's concerns.

Her daughter, Natasha, died at 13 weeks from a viral infection.

"I suppose I felt this vulnerability having lost a child with this child who wouldn't eat," Karmel said.

Karmel tapped into the passion for cooking and started trying out recipes for Nicholas to eat, putting together things he liked — like apple — with things he hated — chicken.

"I suppose I felt this vulnerability having lost a child with this child who wouldn't eat."
ANNABEL KARMEL

She started to give out recipes to other mothers in the playgroup she ran who also were having difficulties with their kids, and said her fellow moms encouraged her to write a book. Karmel saw doing so as a way to honour the legacy of Natasha.

Since the success of her first book, The Complete Baby and Toddler Meal Planner published in 1991, Karmel now has more than 20 to her name. She has been made a Member of the British Empire by the Queen for her work in the area of children's nutrition.

Getting it right

The book offers passages and photos addressing common questions and concerns about weaning, accompanied by food suggestions and recipes for children transitioning from purées to finger foods.

The Cordon Bleu-trained chef, and mother to Nicholas, now 22, Lara, 20 and Scarlett, 18, said she wanted to focus on the first year of a child's life which she describes as the "most important year to be able to get it right."

The perfect meals for the very young

This is from Annabel Karmel's latest book, Starting Solids, which is a guide to weaning babies.

Any root vegetables will work beautifully in this recipe. They purée to a smooth consistency and have a mild flavour that babies love. This recipe provides beta-carotene, vitamins C and E and fibre. Suitable from 17 weeks.

First tastes: Trio of Root Vegetables

Preparation:

1. Place vegetables in a steamer set over boiling water. Cover and steam for 20 minutes until soft.
2. Alternatively, you can boil the vegetables. Place them in a saucepan and cover with boiling water. Bring back to a boil, cover, reduce heat and cook for 18 to 20 minutes until tender.
3. Purée until smooth in a food processor or place in a bowl and use a hand blender, adding a little water from the steamer or some of your baby's usual milk to get the right consistency.
4. Freeze in individual portions. Thaw overnight in the refrigerator or for 1 to 2 hours at room temperature. Microwave or reheat in a pan until piping hot. Stir and let cool before serving. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thumbs down to multi-vits

In 1997, 35,329 women without cancer were enrolled in a Swedish study. They filled out a questionnaire that included information about whether or not they took multivitamins.

During almost 10 years of follow-up, 974 women developed breast cancer.

It turned out that multivitamin use was associated with a statistically significant increased risk of breast cancer.

"The thing about multivitamins is that women use them as a substitute for eating well," says Dr. Janice Wright. "I would rather you eat veggies," she says. CELIA MILNE

Thumbs up to fish oil: U.S. study

A similar study of 35,016 women conducted in Washington state found that women who take fish oil supplements have a lower risk of developing the most common type of breast cancer.

All participants were aged 50 to 76 and were healthy at the start of the study. They filled out questionnaires about their use of supplements.

After six years of follow-up, 880 women developed breast cancer. The risk of developing breast cancer turned out to be 32 per cent lower in women taking fish oil.

Omega-3 fatty acids DHA and EPA are known to reduce inflammation, and there is increasing evidence that cancer is related to inflammation.

Authors suggest that the best way to consume omega-3 fatty acids is by eating fish, rather than through supplements. CELIA MILNE

According to the Canadian Cancer Society, the five-year survival rate for women with breast cancer is quite high, at 87 per cent.

New breast cancer breakthroughs

Leading experts say change is within our grasp Healthy lifestyle can be more powerful for recovery than chemo, radiation: Research shows

CELIA MILNE
@METRONEWS.CA

"There's a revolution in cancer care," says Dr. Janice Wright, director of clinical services at Vancouver's InspireHealth — a cancer care centre that integrates research-based natural approaches with conventional cancer treatment such as chemo and radiation.

Evidence shows that a healthy lifestyle is a powerful force in a positive breast cancer recovery.

Wright explains that most people think all the cells inside a tumour are tumour cells, yet new research reveals that up to 50 per cent of cells inside breast tumours are normal immune cells. These cells, called macrophages, either help the tumour grow or help the body fight cancer.

"We want do to everything we can to turn those macrophages on in a healthy way," she says.

It is possible by our own behaviour to help move these cells into an anti-cancer role by following basic health behaviour: Eating a diet high in omega-3s and low in bad fats and refined sugar; exercising regularly; reducing stress; cutting down on caffeine; cooking with turmeric; drinking green tea once a day; and limiting alcohol intake.

Therapies such as exercise, yoga, proper diet and group discussion used to be considered complementary. "Now we're seeing patients living longer [as a result]," says Wright.

New research shows that the environment in which cancer cells grow has a greater impact on outcome or prognosis than chemotherapy or cancer cells themselves.

"The message is, there are many things you can do to support your immune system," says Wright.

The Statistics

There are many studies on integrated care in breast cancer and InspireHealth is capturing them. Go to.inspirehealth.ca/research/database.

- Approximately 23, 200 Canadian women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in 2010.
- About 5, 300 women will die from the disease this year.
- Breast cancer has become more of a chronic disease than a killer.

Decoding the breast cancer genome

In 2009, doctors at the University of British Columbia accomplished an amazing feat: They decoded all of the three-billion letters in the DNA sequence of a breast cancer tumour.

This research helps to unlock the secrets of how breast cancer grows and spreads. It was considered a landmark study, and was published in the prestigious international journal, Nature.

Dr. Samuel Aparicio and his team, using state-of-the-art technology, studied one patient's lobular metastatic breast cancer tumour over nine years.

They found 32 mutations in the metastatic tumour and then looked to see which ones were present in the original tumour.

Only five of the 32 were present in all the cells of the original tumour, so these five have been pinpointed as culprits in starting the cancer in the first place — something never been done before.

This and other breakthroughs herald the era of customized treatments. Instead of treating all breast cancer tumours in the same way, doctors are now using treatments that curtail the action of enzymes that help an exact type of cancer to grow. Already, two customized therapies are available: Tamoxifen and Herceptin, with more in the pipeline. METRO

News in brief

Dense breasts = higher risk

STUDY. A 2007 Harvard University study points out several factors that put women at higher risk for breast cancer.

For instance, the risk of developing breast cancer after menopause is 400 per cent higher in women who have dense breast tissue, compared to women whose breast tissue is not dense.

While it's important for all women over 50 to have their breasts checked regularly, those with dense breasts should be watched very carefully.

Factors that may protect against breast cancer include having more pregnancies and breast feeding for longer periods. CELIA MILNE

"The worst part is losing your hair."

"My mother and sister got cancer at 42, so I made sure to go for regular mammograms. Sure enough, when I was 42 the doctors discovered a lump in my breast.

I told the doctors they could take my breasts if they needed to, but in the end they only needed to remove the lumps. Still, I needed surgery, chemotherapy and radiation. Inevitably, I lost my hair.

When you're diagnosed with breast cancer, you go through a depression, but the worst part was losing my hair.

When I looked at myself in the mirror, I looked sick. I used to have really long hair, past my butt. When I lost it, I tried to wear a wig, but it was so itchy that I stopped.

If you go for regular mammograms you can detect the cancer early and have very good chances of recovering. Listen to all the options the doctors give you, but don't be scared.

The only thing you should be scared of is not having a mammogram."

Jamie Currier

"My husband found a lump."

"One day last year, my husband and I were watching TV and saw a news program about self-examinations. My husband asked if he could do one on me, which I thought was amusing, especially since I was only 29. But he did, and he found a lump.

I had a bilateral mastectomy. It was an incredibly difficult decision because I liked my breasts and didn't want to let them go. Before the operation, I arranged for a professional photographer to come and take photos of me so I'd be able to remember what I looked like before the cancer. I'm proud of myself that I had the courage to do that.

I thought having breast cancer would be easier than it turned out. The physical part was about what I expected, but the psychological part was harder.

People expect you to behave a certain way. Some expected me to cry all the time, while others thought I was too sad. My husband was incredibly supportive, but we had our struggles.

Fortunately he agreed to go to therapy with me. Today, the tumour is gone and doctors tell me it only has a small chance of returning. I feel like a survivor."

Angela Chester

"I mourn the loss of my breasts."

"One day while taking a shower, I felt something in my breast that wasn't supposed to be there. When I went to the doctor, he told me I had cancer. In a way, it was a relief that the knot was something — it wasn't just me being crazy.

I had chemotherapy, radiation and breast-reduction surgery. The doctors had to remove the tumour in my right breast, but they had to reduce my left breast, too, so it wouldn't look strange. I went from being a DD-cup to being a B-cup. I'm happy to be alive, but I do mourn the loss of my breasts. It's my skin and tissue, but this isn't the way God made them.

My surgery was in November last year. People sobbed as if I'd died. I think it made them think about their own mortality. My husband kept telling me 'We're in this together. I won't leave you.' Many breast cancer patients worry about their husbands leaving them. Having breast cancer has changed my world. I've learned just to look two to three days ahead. And I've learned not to worry about things I can't change. These days I don't get angry when I'm stuck in traffic."

Allison Briggs

"You're not alone."

"I found a lump and went to the doctor. The doctor told me it was probably cancer, but I delayed getting a biopsy. This was five years ago. I was only 25 and it didn't make sense to me that I'd have cancer. Then I discovered another lump. I had chemotherapy, and the doctors advised me to have both of my breasts removed.

That was a really, really, really hard decision for me. For the first year I wasn't too upset, but when I started dating again it became much harder. Fortunately, when I met my boyfriend, who's now my fiancé, he said 'Ali, it's not a big deal.' Having lost my breasts still affects me, but now I've accepted that it's part of who I am.

When I got cancer my sister, who was living with her boyfriend, simply got on a plane and moved in with me. She took care of me, cooked for me and took me for walks. More importantly, she came with me to every medical appointment and spoke on my behalf when I was too emotional to talk.

As a young breast cancer patient you feel alone, because you feel that your peers don't relate to you. But you're not alone. One thing I want to tell people is that early detection is a matter of life and death."

Woods will go third at Ryder Cup

U.S. captain Corey Pavin called on one of his strongest teams to lead off his team's defence of the Ryder Cup.

Tiger Woods? He'll be going third.

Phil Mickelson and Dustin Johnson, famous for their big-money games they play during practice rounds, will be the opening fourballs match Friday at Celtic Manor as the United States tries to win the Ryder Cup away from home for the first time since 1993.

They will face Europe's best player, Lee Westwood, and its latest major champion, Martin Kaymer.

Woods, who has gone nearly 10 months without a victory, will be partners with Steve Stricker in the third of four matches. They will face Ian Poulter and Ross Fisher, one of six rookies on the European side.

It's the first time since 1999 that Woods was not in the opening match of the Ryder Cup.

European captain Colin Montgomerie was expecting Woods and Stricker in either the opening match or as the anchor.

"Tiger being hidden is a different move," he said.

Pavin did not go into details on the nature of his pairings or the order, saying he cared only about the American team and not what Montgomerie might do.

Woods and Stricker make for a natural partnership. A year ago at the Presidents Cup, they became the first team in 30 years to go 4-0 in cup competition. They will take on one of Europe's most passionate players in Poulter, who once said that when he reaches his potential, it will be just he and Woods atop the world ranking.

The last time the Montreal Alouettes played at McMahon Stadium, they walked off the field with the Grey Cup.

The Calgary Stampeders weren't their opposition, having lost in the Western final to the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The Als won the CFL title in a thriller. Damon Duval won the game on a second field-goal attempt after the Roughriders were called for too many men on his first missed attempt.

Montreal returns to the scene of that drama to face the host Stampeders on Friday. The Als won't spend much time dwelling on happy memories when they step onto that field again.

MONTREAL CALGARY

"I'm sure it's only human nature that when we walk out there we'll think for a moment about that, but we've got to get focused on the task," Alouettes head coach Marc Trestman said Thursday. "We've got a heck of a team we're playing against and we're excited to go out and test ourselves as well."

Calgary and Montreal top their respective divisions with 9-3 records. Montreal is coming off back-to-back wins, while the Stamps are hoping to snap their first two-game losing skid of the season.

This is the first meeting of the year between the defending Grey Cup champions and the league champion from two years ago, when Calgary beat Montreal at home for the title. Montreal swept last season's series 2-0.

Montreal downed Winnipeg 44-40 last week and has six points of breathing room on the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the East Division.

The Stampeders are coming off a dreadful performance in a 29-10 loss to B.C. last week. The Saskatchewan Roughriders (8-4) are breathing down Calgary's neck for top spot in the West.

Montreal and Calgary have mirrored each other in their losses this season, falling to the B.C. Lions, Toronto Argonauts and the Roughriders on the road.

"The two teams here on the field have lost to the same teams in the same venues," Calgary quarterback Henry Burris observed.

"Something's got to give and we want to make sure we do our best offensively to make sure we can help out and get a victory here against the defending Grey Cup champions."

Calgary's next three games are pivotal to their season as they face Montreal twice and then Saskatchewan on Oct. 17.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 If someone criticizes you for no good reason today you must defend yourself vigorously. Besides, you are well aware what your faults and failings are, you don't need some know-it-all pointing out the obvious to you.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 The more you commit yourself today the more likely it is you will enjoy a carefree weekend.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Someone in a position of authority will try to persuade you to change the way you do things today, and you must resist with all your might.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Your ability to see emotional conflicts from both sides will help defuse a potentially explosive situation today. Because you have no personal stake in the affair others will trust you to be fair.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 If you are on the move today you would be wise to think ahead and make allowances for unexpected delays. If you leave anything to chance you are likely to find yourself arriving late for a date

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 What happens today will ease your fears about your money situation. A windfall is possible but more likely you will realize that the amount of cash in your pocket isn't that important. It certainly isn't more important than love.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Today's Sun-Saturn union will limit your options and force you to follow a single path to your goal, and that's good.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 If your sixth sense tells you that the information you have received from a friend or work colleague cannot be trusted then you would be wise to ignore it.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 You may not be much in the mood for social activities today but that's okay. You have a great deal on your mind at the moment and you won't be back to your old self until you have dealt with it all.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 Now is the time to make your move on the work front. Now is the time to impress employers and other important people with your ideas and talents.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Generally speaking you have never been one to live by rules and regulations, but with Saturn so strong in your chart at the moment it might be wise not to be quite such a rebel.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 If you are a typical Pisces you don't much care for materialistic values but today you must look out for the dollars and cents. If you're wasteful you'll regret it later on in the month.
